

Highland Gardens

1818 W Juneau Avenue

As the first “green” public housing project, Highland Gardens’ sustainability efforts include daylighting, a green roof, rain garden, salvaged material used in construction, and specialty interior finishes such as cork floors. The building complements the surrounding architecture with residential appeal rather than an institutional design that may identify it as public housing.