Youth summer jobs available with USDA

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has summer jobs available for young people ages 16-24, and is hoping to receive resumes by this weekend from interested applicants, Alderman Joe Davis, Sr. said today.

The application deadline is Sunday, March 4, 2012, so time is of the essence for those young people who are interested, Alderman Davis said.

The USDA wants to help teach young people the skills necessary to move from entry level positions to upper and senior level positions within government and private industries. The USDA is hoping that the summer positions will be a valuable learning experience that can help expose young people from diverse backgrounds to possible careers at USDA and private companies involved in agriculture.

“This summer job offer is an excellent opportunity, especially given the current economic conditions and a very difficult job market for young people in Milwaukee,” said Alderman Davis. Applicants are encouraged to work on their resumes with schools, churches, families, and mentors, and should include current skills, academic information, as well as work experience. Applicants should also mention any activities – including volunteer work – with local churches and community groups/agencies.

Resumes should be delivered by Sunday, March 4 to the New Hope Missionary Baptist Church at 2433 W. Roosevelt Dr., Milwaukee, and can also be submitted via email to newhopebc@ameritech.net. Please include “USDA Resume” in the subject line.
