NML Tower and Commons project small business session is Monday, June 30

Information will be shared for small and disadvantaged businesses interested in opportunities available during $450M NML HQ project

Small business owners and managers in the trades interested in finding out about possible partnership opportunities available on the $450 million Northwestern Mutual Tower and Commons project should attend a special informational session on Monday (June 30, 2014), said Alderman Russell W. Stamper, II.

Alderman Stamper said the informational session on Monday will be held at 1:00 p.m. at United Methodist Children's Services (second floor), 3940 W. Lisbon Ave. The event is free and open to all interested contractors, business owners and managers.

"Work on the new Northwestern Mutual Tower and Commons will require architectural trades contractors and businesses who are able to handle everything from flooring and electrical work, to doors, ceilings, painting, carpentry and audio visual," Alderman Stamper said.

"Small and disadvantaged business operations should make a point of coming to Monday's information session, to see what potential opportunities exist," he said.
