SOLD OUT: A Seat at the Table receives overwhelming response

The event is SOLD OUT, but Alderwoman Milele A. Coggs invites community members to watch A Seat at the Table TODAY, Monday, September 12 for a community dialogue on the recent New York Times Milwaukee-focused article, “Affluent and Black, and Still Trapped by Segregation.”

Because of the immense response to this event, The New York Times will Facebook Live the event starting at 6 p.m., granting access to those who were not able to secure #ASeatAtTheTableMKE (the event will be taking place this evening in the 6th Aldermanic District at The Big Eazy, 2053 N. Dr. Martin Luther King Dr.).

“I am thrilled with the positive, overwhelming response we have gotten to this event,” Alderwoman Coggs said. “I am looking forward to each of the courses this evening: networking, the panel discussion, dialogue and a call to action. I encourage viewers to watch it on Facebook Live.”

Event sponsors and partners include Alderwoman Coggs, The New York Times, Friends of Bronzeville, The Woodruff Group, and P3 Development Group LLC.
