Key MLK Library presentations today

Representatives from the development teams for the three proposals for the future development of the Martin Luther King Branch Library will make presentations at 4:30 p.m. today (Tuesday, December 20) at the MLK Branch Library, 310 W. Locust St.

Representatives from the development teams will also be available to answer questions about their proposed projects, which can be viewed here http://mpl.org/about/library\_development/martin\_luther\_king.php on the MPL website.

Alderwoman Milele A. Coggs, a member of the Milwaukee Public Library Board of Trustees, will also be joined by fellow library board members to review the proposals at today's session. "I invite neighbors to join us today to see what each development team is proposing for the MLK library site," she said.

"The library is a vital resource hub for members of our community, and public comment and feedback is critical for making the project one that makes a positive impact on the community for many years into the future," Alderwoman Coggs said.
