Pulaski HS session to be last in series of Saturday hearings on public safety issues

Milwaukee citizens will have one final opportunity to provide in-person input, ideas and feedback on potential solutions to the city's public safety issues during a public hearing at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday (October 29) before the Public Safety Committee in the auditorium at Pulaski High School, 2500 W. Oklahoma Ave.

The Saturday committee hearings started October 8 and included two north and northwest side venues (Marshall High School and Obama High School), and two on the south side (Pulaski and South Division High School). Public Safety Committee chair Alderman Bob Donovan said attendees have engaged the committee and have been providing constructive and important feedback.

If you are unable to attend the hearing but would still like to provide input and ideas to help shape public safety policy for the city, you can go online at Milwaukee.gov/publicsafetysurvey and take the city's public engagement survey.

"We have been hearing directly from individuals about what they see happening in their neighborhoods, and how they believe we can help improve public safety in Milwaukee," Alderman Donovan said. "We are looking to hear from as many people as possible about public safety challenges, and also about their ideas for how to help reduce problems and how we might better respond to specific issues."

"If you believe leaders and elected officials aren't listening or won't listen – this is your chance to weigh in and speak directly to us. We want to hear from you," Alderman Donovan said.

Saturday's hearing will be hosted by Alderman Terry L. Witkowski, a member of the committee whose 13th Aldermanic district includes Pulaski High School.
