

Statement of Council President
Willie L. Hines, Jr.
November 26, 2007

Thanks to a tip from an observant citizen who had been victimized herself, the Milwaukee Police Department was able to apprehend a man accused of sexually assaulting young women in the central city. He was tracked down and arrested on Friday at his place of employment in Pewaukee. My sincere thanks go out to the officers who sprung into action when they received the tip. And, of course, I am deeply grateful to the young woman who alertly let police know where they could find her alleged attacker. For far too long, our young women have been preyed upon in many of the safest and most close-knit communities of the central city. We can all rest easier now that he looks to be off the streets and in jail.
