Today's verdict in the Kyle Rittenhouse trial might be a surprise for some, but for others, it's another day for our Black and Brown communities. While Rittenhouse was allowed to go free by a jury, Black and Brown people continue to feel alienated and are unjustly accused and charged of lesser crimes with harsher punishments. The injustices we see today serve as reminders that we have much work ahead of us to create a fair, just, and equitable society for all.

Our prayers and condolences to the families and friends of Anthony Huber, Joseph Rosenbaum, and Gaige Grosskreutz, and we wish for peace, healing, and support across Kenosha, our state, and our nation.

The mission of the City of Milwaukee Equal Rights Commission is to promote and protect equality, equity, and human rights through education, enforcement, and community engagement.
