Accident insurance: why is it so important?

Accidents can happen when you least expect them. And while you can't always prevent them, you can help lessen the financial impact and try to make your recovery less stressful.

In the U.S., there are approximately 29.4 million trips to the emergency room annually due to injuries.¹ These visits can be expensive — in fact, ER bills average around $2,032 per visit,² and even seemingly small injuries can come with unexpectedly high hospital bills.

You may be thinking — that's why I have health insurance. But even the best medical plans may leave you with unexpected expenses like deductibles, copays, extra costs for out-of-network care, and non-covered services.

You can't plan for accidents, but you can try to handle them better by being financially prepared.

How it works

Accident insurance works to supplement your medical coverage — and pays regardless of what your medical plan may or may not cover. It's coverage that provides a financial cushion for life's unexpected events by providing you with a lump-sum payment (one convenient payment all at once) for a covered event when your family may need it most. The payment you receive is yours to spend however you like. It pays if you have tests, receive medical services, treatment or care for one of more covered events¹ as defined in your group certificate. And best of all, the payment is made directly to you, and is made regardless of any other insurance you may have. It's yours to spend however you like, including for you or your family's everyday living expenses.

Whatever you need while recovering from an accident or injury, accident insurance is there to make life a little easier.
