Critical illness insurance: Why is it so important?

Medical bills have contributed to 58% of bankruptcies.¹ In 2020, one in four working-age adults with insurance coverage reported medical bill problems or debt in the past year.²

The financial consequences of surviving a critical illness are something few people are prepared for. Expenses that may not be covered by medical plans, such as co-pays, deductibles, childcare, mortgage, groceries and experimental treatments, could cut into your savings.

When critical illness affects your family, you'll have the support you need when it matters most with MetLife Critical Illness Insurance.

How it works

It works to supplement your medical coverage — and pays in addition to what your medical plan may or may not cover. Upon verified diagnosis, it provides you with a lump-sum payment of $10,000 $15,000 or $30,000 in initial benefits. The payment you receive is yours to spend however you like.

This Critical Illness Insurance plan also offers a Health Screening Benefit. It can provide early detection of a serious illness. This benefit provides an extra $50 annual benefit per calendar year when you see your physician for eligible health screenings or prevention measures.⁵

Critical Illness Insurance is coverage that can help safeguard your finances by providing you with a lump-sum payment — one convenient payment all at once — when you or your loved ones need it most. The extra cash can help you focus on getting back on track without worrying about finding the money to cover the costs of treatment.

Why should I enroll now?
