Welcome to the Fire & Police Commission’s (FPC) new monthly newsletter!

Each edition will be focused on bringing city residents more timely and transparent information about current initiatives the department is working on and sharing critical data from the fire and police departments. Established in 1885 by the Wisconsin Legislature and Milwaukee City Code, the Milwaukee Fire & Police Commission is the country’s oldest citizens review board, which currently has seven part-time citizen board members (Commissioners) out of 9 available seats. As a non-partisan, independent review board, the Commission serves as the policy and oversight entity charged with establishing recruitment and testing standards, approval of department promotions, and the hearing and adjudicating of disciplinary appeals for misconduct. With the Commission serving in a policy and oversight capacity, this allows the Fire Chief and Police Chief to manage the daily operations of their departments and implement the Commission’s policy goals.

In addition, the Commission’s full-time staff and operations are under the Office of the Executive Director. The Executive Director, who serves as the Commission’s Secretary, is appointed by the mayor and confirmed by the Common Council. In this role as the department head, I manage the functions of the Executive Office and am responsible for the coordination of the Commission’s agenda, cadet recruitment and testing classes, marketing, investigating citizen complaints, increasing community engagement, coordination of emergency management services, and representing the Commission at various meetings and events. While we are currently a small department with only 16 professionals out of 28 that are in the approved city budget, it takes an amazing team of people to continue promoting the highest ethical and professional standards of excellence and expectations in law enforcement and firefighting.

My staff takes great pride in the essential work that is accomplished every day, including the collaboration we have with the fire and police departments. Collaboration and Engagement are indeed essential; however, they are only pieces of the plan. Since taking office, I have restructured the department to ensure we are more efficient and providing meaningful Oversight of fire and police operations.

This is what I coin as creating a C.E.O model: Collaboration. Engagement. Oversight. I continue to also ask the community for help – we must hear from you, especially new voices, so that we may listen and learn of the many complex issues Milwaukee faces. We have a diverse city with diverse views and ideas – there isn’t just one correct way of providing oversight that works for everyone or solves many of our interconnected community issues.

My pledge to the Mayor, Common Council, and most importantly to city residents, is that I am leading this department in a more transparent, data-driven approach. Part of this approach must also include reviewing policies that may hurt city residents, especially people of color.

However, this does not happen in only a few months. These gaps are systemic and must be addressed at the root cause, not simply attempt to treat the symptoms of deep transgressions. I hope you find these newsletters to be insightful and answer my call in working together to heal and help Milwaukee continue to be an amazing place to live, work, and visit.

Sincerely,

Griselda Aldrete
Executive Director
Kyle Mirehouse
Director, Emergency Management/Homeland Security & Communications

As the OEM/HS Director, Kyle is charged with daily operations for the Milwaukee Office of Emergency Management-Homeland Security & Communication. With an emergency management and military background, Kyle understands the complexities of this role, and works tirelessly on establishing plans, partnerships, and training exercises to minimize the danger and boost preparedness for Milwaukee. In addition to collaborating with other city departments as well as various government entities such as Milwaukee County, state of Wisconsin, and the Federal government – a collaboration with community residents, community & faith-based organizations, churches, schools, hospitals, and many others is key in preparing for emergencies.

An ongoing objective the OEM/HS is focused on is enhancing current emergency preparedness plans, which is coupled with one current paramount priority: planning for the upcoming Democratic National Convention (DNC). The DNC is designated as National Special Security Event (NSSE), which brings together dozens of organizations from local to federal entities. With nearly 30 different sub-committees focused on DNC planning objectives, the OEM/HS has a central role in facilitating the efficient collaboration and coordination between all stakeholders to confirm that the city of Milwaukee is in the best prepared-position for such a large-scale and visible event.

Milwaukee's OEM/HS is committed to the safety and preparedness of Milwaukee residents, businesses, and community organizations and strives to maintain the most continuous forward-leaning posture possible for all potential emergencies.

POSTING THE DATA

Per the requirements in the settlement to Federal Case 17-CV-234-JPS the Milwaukee Fire and Police Commission (FPC) is required to publish particular stop and search encounter data, on a quarterly basis, in compliance with Sec. IV(A)(10-13). Data is suitable for posting only after the Personally Identifiable Information (PII) gathered from each encounter has been removed. Due to ongoing technical issues, only a portion of the quarterly data is currently available in a form which excludes PII and that can be acceptably disseminated to the public. As technical challenges are solved the FPC anticipates that future data will allow for additional data elements to be included in the publicly posted data sets.

Data for the 3rd Quarter of 2019 is now available on the Milwaukee Open Data Portal

A STRONGER PRESENCE THROUGHOUT THE CITY

Having a stronger presence within the community is just one example of our commitment in creating safe spaces throughout the city for residents to talk and for us to listen. An investigator from the FPC will be present to answer questions and help individuals through the complaint process. Many times, those who have a complaint do not report it due to barriers that prevent them from accessing the people who can listen and help. This ranges from expensive or no parking options, the need to pay for transportation, long lines, and even venturing to other parts of the city that may be unfamiliar to you. Their voices must be heard.

In our continued pledge for stronger community outreach, the FPC is coming to you!
